Bad Bunny's Super Bowl halftime show wasn't just a musical performance, it was a cultural statement. By naming and referencing places across Latin America and the Caribbean, he brought the diversity of the Americas onto one of the world's biggest stages, highlighting identities that are often overlooked in global pop culture.

The map shows which political divisions were explicitly mentioned, referenced collectively as part of Las Antillas, or left unmentioned. Nearly all of Latin America appears in green, underscoring the artist's intention to represent a shared regional story that goes beyond borders, languages, and politics. Of course, his hometown, Puerto Rico, was mentioned many times!
